The Season for Work and Play

by ALEENE BARNES

The Bob Stacks on vacation meet Untouchable Martin Labart at the Royal Hawaiian in Honolulu.

- How do TV stars spend their vacations?

Some work: Gene (Bat Masterson) Barry's touring with his new night club act . . . Laramie's Bob Fuller and John Smith making the scene at rodeos . . . Lori (National Velvet) Martin filming "Cape Fear" with Gregory Peck, while her TV sister, Carole Wells, is on the MGM lot for two roles . . . Gary Vinson of The Roaring 20s in the film, "A Majority of One," with Roz Russell . . . John (Bachelor Father) Forsythe producing his own feature film, "The Man Who Died Twice," in Mexico . . .

Some travel: The Untouchables' Robert Stack and his "missus" to Honolulu where they met a real live Untouchable, Martin J. Lahart (one of Eliot Ness' first agents), at the Royal Hawaiian Hotel . . . Ronnie Burns of Happy sailing and surfing in Hawaii . . . Michael Landon and Dan Blocher (Bonanza) & families in Nassau . . . Jerome Cowan and Richard Erdman (Tab Hunter Show) & families in Europe . . .

THIS WEEK ON TV (for those not on vacation): Mickey Rooney and son Teddy on GE Theater tonight (Sunday) (CBS) . . . Glenn Miller Time debuts Monday (CBS) . . . NBC repeats "Those Ragtime Years" Tuesday . . . Playhouse 90 shows "The Cruel Day" Tuesday (CBS) . . . Preview Theater (comedies) bows Friday (NBC) . . . CBS covers the Miss Universe Pageant Saturday . . . "Dance Marathon" is the Roaring 20s episode Saturday (ABC).

On the cover: John Forsythe, television's Bachelor Father, has gained quite a reputation for getting a girl's address. Next fall he'll have a new address himself. Forsythe and the series leave NBC for ABC pastures.

Gary Vinson and Dorothy Provine dance it up on the Roaring 20s Saturday on ABC.

*Oscar Katz, left, believes that much of the TV audience is being lost. To offset this, CBS will offer some new shows next season. Among these is The Defenders, right, with Robert Reed and E. G. Marshall as a father-son lawyer team.*

CBS plans 7 new comedies

by CECIL SMITH

(This is the second in a series of articles on network plans for the 1961-62 season. This concerns CBS.)

● The word on Madison Avenue this year is "balance." Each network attempts to prove that it has a more balanced schedule than its rivals. In the offices of Oscar Katz, the lean, balding CBS vice president in charge of programming, there's a graph showing the balance at CBS—32% action shows, 30% comedy, 16% variety, 12% public affairs, 10% drama.

While Katz denies emphatically the accusation by ABC president Ollie Treyz that CBS and NBC have sought to "imitate" the action schedule of ABC to the loss of a considerable percentage of the TV audience, he is inclined to agree that much of the audience is slipping away. And the major reason is that even the best balance in TV tips toward action and comedy and away from drama and the more serious TV efforts.

Furthermore, he worries that this lost audience may include the leadership of a community—"the image makers," as he puts it.

CBS last season tossed a host of comedies into its schedule and wound up at the top of the Nielsen ratings most of the year, despite ABC's hot competition. This coming season, it has another slew of comedies, including seven new ones spotted in prime time.

The new ones include a Robert Young show, Window on Main Street, on Monday nights, and a Robert Cummings show for Thursday nights. Also on tap are comedies starring Gertrude Berg, Dick Van Dyke, the Marquis chimps and others.

For the lost audience, which once thrived on Playhouse 90, Studio One and the like, CBS plans increasing its schedule of CBS Reports on Thursday nights, returning Eyewitness on Fridays and offering "special" samples of drama through the year, including the $500,000 production of Sir Laurence Olivier in Graham Greene's "The Power and the Glory," taped last month by David Susskind and Talent Associates. Equally, eight original hour dramas to be produced by Gordon Duff will be spotted through the season.

Katz is particularly enthused about a new legal program, The Defenders, created by writer Reginald Rose and produced by Playhouse 90's Herb Brodtkin, two of the finest craftsmen ever to work in television. This serious legal study, starring E. G. Marshall and Robert Reed as a father-son lawyer team, will follow with legal realism the legal fantasy of Perry Mason to the air each Saturday.

"This is a new dramatic concept," says Katz. "We believe each year we should try something new. Last year, it was Candid Camera, a success, and Witness, a failure. But I would rather fail with a Witness than a Dan Raven or an Islanders."

(Next week: NBC.)

Summer vacation's almost over for Marjorie Lord but she managed to find time to visit beautiful Huntington Library in San Marino. Now, it's back to work for CBS actress.

Vacation? All Work, No Play

• "Man may work from sun to sun, but woman's work is never done" — and that goes double if you're an actress. Take Marjorie Lord, for example. Since CBS' Danny Thomas Show (she plays Danny's TV wife) ceased production in April for a summer recess, Marjorie has been "vacationing" with her producer-husband Randy Hale... a vacation that has taken her to Phoenix to look over a legitimate theater production for Randy's Alcazar Theater in San Francisco... to New York to attend a meeting of CBS affiliate station managers... to San Francisco to attend an art and fashion show. (She also managed to sneak off to a Giant-Dodger game on this trip)... to Las Vegas for Danny Thomas' opening at the Sands Hotel and to film a series of commercials for her sponsor. However, this dash-about routine is nearly over, for the Danny Thomas Show resumes production next week, so it will be back to work for Marjorie and a chance to settle down after a dashing vacation.

TV Comedy Trying for A Comeback

By FAIRFAX NISBET

PEGGY CASS . . . can she help laughs return?

ACCORDING to anthropologists, one of the basic differences between man and animals is the former's ability to laugh. But only a few seasons back, Man—the televiewing portion of the species, that is, almost got out of the habit of the yuk and guffaw.

There was a time when Milton Berle, Sid Caesar, Jackie Gleason, Phil Silvers and the like were the kingpins of the airways. That day passed and crime and frontier violence began to pay off. The comics faded away to hover over their investments or even take up bowling.

The female of the species also got the brush-off. Expert comediennesses such as Eve Arden began to shake their heads over the beatings TV comedies were taking in the ratings war, running last against westerns, mystery and drama programs. Her first TV comedy effort, "Our Miss Brooks" was a winner but her second situation comedy series, although of the same caliber got knocked off.

She attributed the lowly status of TV comedy to sponsors and advertising agencies, whom she considered unqualified to determine humor, daring performers to be funny. Also she pointed out that the viewing public got afraid to laugh or admit they enjoyed a comedy show, until after they had checked their neighbors' reactions.

Then we got into this era of sick comedy and sicker comics. Last summer in Hollywood, Lucille Ball, discussing this situation, said she thought the vogue for sick comedians stemmed from the fact that audiences laughed it up for this type of comic because of fear of being thought square, that only a few way-out souls really liked it.

However there's no need for comedy fans and performers to despair. Comedy is picking up momentum in television. Last season among new series that hit the top and will continue are "My Three Sons" starring Fred MacMurray and William Frawley, "The Andy Griffith Show," the animated cartoon, "The Flintstones" and "Pete and Gladys."

And next season the comedy train will have a full head of steam with nine new situation comedy series. Two of these are animated cartoons slanted for adults and stimulated by the great success of ABC-TV's "Flintstones." The cartoon duo includes "Top Cat" and "Calvin and the Colonel."

Two of these incoming situation comedy skeins will bring back a couple of old hands at the game, Bob Cummings and Robert Young, both of whom have new fall series. Then there's "Mrs. G. Goes to College" with Gertrude Berg as a late-comer to the campus and her teammate of "Majority of One," Sir Cedric Hardwicke as a long-suffering college professor. Dick Van Dyke is saying "Bye Bye Birdie" to take a TV comedy flyer, and another will make merry about police car cops. And also on the roster is "The Hathaways" starring Peggy Cass, a housewife who raises chimpanzees and treats them like children of the house.

In all the hullabaloo in the TV hearings held by FCC there's been much talk about the situation comedies being about families that depart from the average can next-door types.

Aw, shucks, what do they mean our situation comedy families aren't everyday folks? Take one of the TV families that is an oldtimer—the Nelsons, Ozzie and Harriet and their boys. One kid plays guitar and sings and sells millions of records which have made him a fortune and the other acts in movies and performs in a circus trapeze act. Well, don't everybody's kids have some little quirk? And if the Hathaways make kids out of their chimps, don't some kids make monkeys out of their parents?

But let's stop quibbling, for comedy seems on the up-grade. And heaven knows in this age of tensions and gloomy outlook we need all the laughs we can get.

TEDDY ROONEY, right, threatens to eclipse the career of his famous father, Mickey Rooney.

Chip Off the Yule Log

PATERNAL PRIDE never glows brighter than when an entertainer watches his young sprout follow his steps to the footlights.

And Joe Yule Jr., better known as Mickey Rooney, is beaming broadly these days at the theatrical activities of three of his progeny—with a special beam for his youngest son, 10-year-old Teddy, who already threatens to eclipse his famous father in show business accomplishments.

The two Rooneys, appearing together for the first time on television, portray father and son in "The Money Driver," a repeat performance on GE Theater, Sunday on CBS-TV, Channel 4, at 8 p.m.

Although the irrepressible Mick toddled onstage at two to join the act of his parents, vaudeville headliners Joe Yule and Nell Carter, it took the talented Irishman about four years to make his mark as a Hollywood star after the "Mickey (Himself) McGuire" comedies which he outgrew at twelve.

Teddy, however, at 10 has already accomplished more diverse billing laurels. He's appeared in feature pictures with Doris Day and Jack Lemmon, in a western with Audie Murphy and joined his father for a nostalgic return in "Andy Hardy Comes Home" a couple of years ago.

It took Rooney pere a growing-up period before television was available for his own series, "Hey! Mulligan," and Emmy-nomination roles in "The Comedian," "Pinocchio," and "Eddie," as well as a brace of variety show guestings.

Not to be outdone on the small screen by the senior Rooney, young Teddy has scored in his TV debut on "Playhouse 90," on the specials, "Ransom of Red Chief," "Merry Month of May," and "Huckleberry Finn," and demonstrated a talent for terpsichore by dancing with Ed Wynn.

Although Teddy's older brother Timmy, 12, will be a regular in the Warner Bros. "Room for One More" TV comedy series next season, Teddy prefers to spice his young career with a variety of appearances. The eldest of the Rooney offspring, 15-year-old Mick Jr., has his eye on a musical career as an instrumentalist.

A portent of the past repeating itself—a past when the Mick was an entertainment dynamo with Judy Garland and other young stars in a brace of musical comedies during his lengthy tenure at M-G-M Studios—appears on the horizon for young Teddy who currently has added singing to his accomplishments. The youngster has waxed his first disc as a contract artist for the Imperial label—a romantic ballad, "After the Dance," backed with a rock 'n' roll rhythm tune, "Bite Your Tongue."

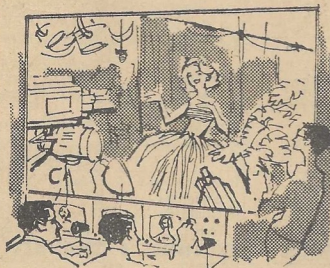

Eager to tell the world about his well-checkered show business life, the senior Rooney is currently completing his autobiography which he reveals is one part Joe Yule Sr. and one part Joe Yule Jr., with equal portions devoted to his youngsters.

He's calling it, quite naturally, "Chip Off the Yule Log," and confesses to hacking away at the subject matter for twenty years.

Mum's the Word

• Television's oat-flavored cameras have focused on almost every type of western imaginable, from the old shoot-em-ups to the modernistic adult approach in which our hero tries to convince an outlaw that his wayward ways are due to a bad batch of pabulum he consumed as a tyke. A few shoot-outs ago, a new hitch was added to the post, a silent one — Whispering Smith, Mondays on NBC, with silent Guy Mitchell as detective George Romack of the Denver Police Dept. With spyglass in hand, Guy quietly travels the West in true Sherlock Holmes fashion, using the latest crime detection methods in hopes of trapping any baddy who is foolish enough to make too much noise.

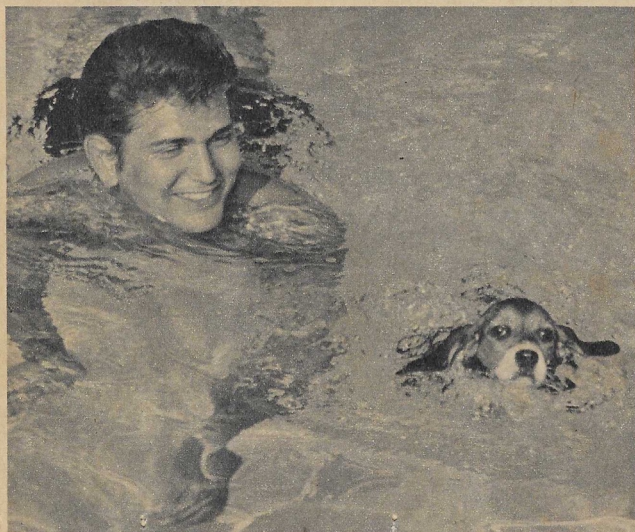

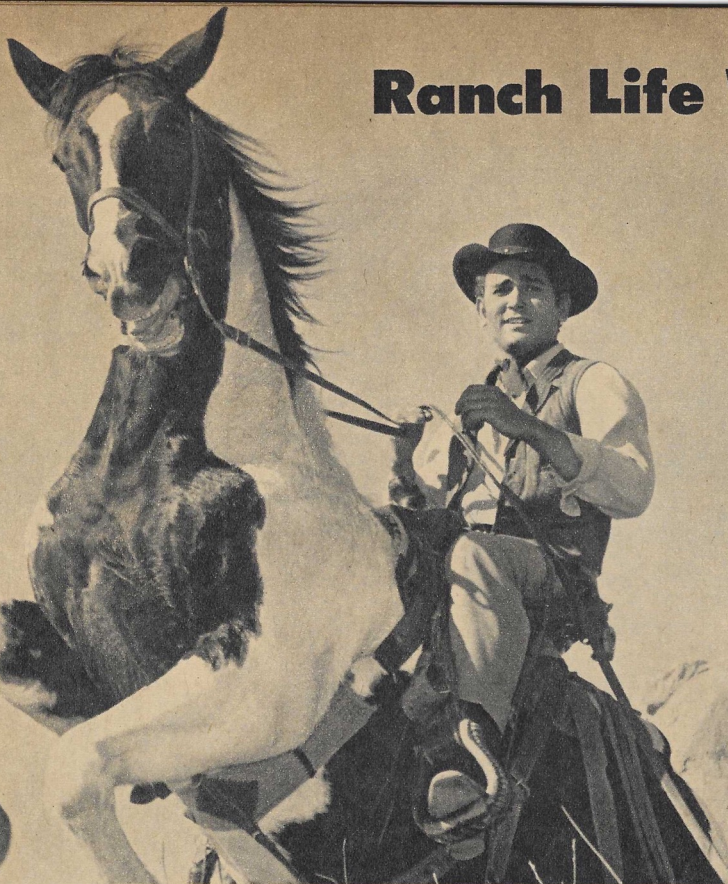

—RON TEPPER

An honest outlaw doesn't stand a chance against tight-lipped Guy Mitchell's outlaw-catching methods. Above, he uses a rope. On the right, more rope. Podnab, thar ain't nothin' to it, especially for Mitchell who in private life is an ol' cowhand.

Ranch Life Was

Hi, yo, Paint! Michael Landon rides the Ponderosa (above) aboard his buddy Paint in scene from NBC's western series, Bonanza.

Mike takes a dip with another four-legged pal, his pet beagle, Honeybear, as the scene shifts from Ponderosa to home pool.

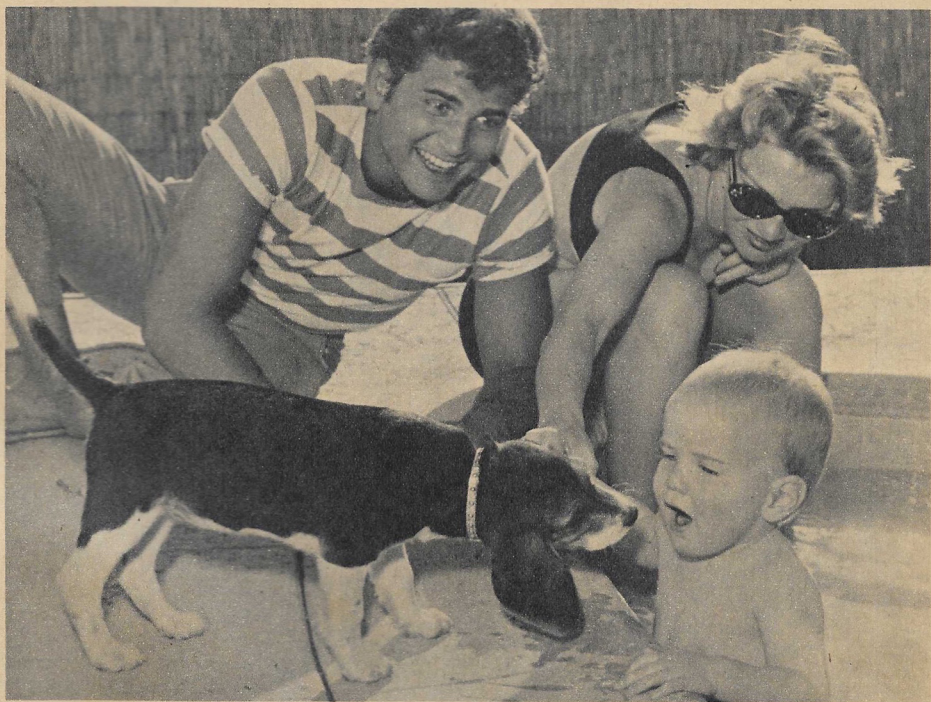

Never Like This

• When you've been around animals as long as Michael Landon, you become rather attached to the beasts. After all, where would Landon — and the other members of NBC's Bonanza family — be if it were not for their stable of hayburners? Besides, the Ponderosa is alive with all sorts of stock. You can't pass the bunkhouse without running into a sow, cow, or Hoss Cartwright, the biggest "animal" on the spread. Landon enjoys being a part of Bonanza's Cartwright family since it affords him the opportunity of mingling with all them chickens. Like a lot of performers in a weekly series, Landon takes his work home with him. Hence, the presence of pets at the Landon household—an ape and a beagle. Shucks, no spread can be without them.

Even their adopted son, Josh, loves animals as much as papa Landon. Josh tries to give pet beagle, Honeybear, a kiss as Landon and wife Dodie encourage buddy-buddy relationship with animals.

Meet the Crew of Surfside 6

Surfside 6, ABC's Monday night adventure series, is manned by one of the youngest crews swimming the Warner Bros. television sea. The stars, Lee Patterson, Diane McBain and Van Williams, are virtually seaman apprentices in television. But despite their youth and lack of experience, the Miami-based anchor-clankers have sustained good ratings. Their house and motorboats will be floating at the same buoy next season. On television, it's either sink or swim.
